

MY LEGACY IS HOPE FOR SOMEBODY ELSE!

Anne's Legacy Story...

"I was interested in souls. Young people, especially today, seem lost--truly, truly lost. I thought if funds were available to help them, to give them a start, I would try to do what I could to make that happen.

I chose to create an endowment for The Salvation Army in my will for the purpose of helping young people. They need to know there are other alternatives in life and that there are people who want to help them out. If my legacy helps one person I'll be very happy, and when that one person helps somebody else out it multiplies.

You're supposed to help your brother out—not because he looks good or he dresses good, but because he's your brother. The only things we're going to take to heaven are the souls that we influenced. I worked very hard for what I've had in life and I don't like to waste anything. If it's going to do anything, let it do some good to help somebody out.

When you leave a legacy you want to leave a legacy that's going to have meaning. The Salvation Army serves unconditionally. They will utilize everything that's given to them to help somebody else, but The Salvation Army cannot survive on kettles alone. By establishing an endowment fund, my legacy is hope for somebody else."
